

“Stewardship of the Air”

The workers are not the culprits but the pawns of owners, who use them to justify profitable pollution while hiring as few workers as possible and paying them as little as possible. 62

Brigham Young never ceased telling the Saints that the one thing that would disrupt the civilization of Deseret was mining in the Territory. 67

Acid rain, greenhouse effect, and damaged ozone. 69 (Recall the 70s and 80s - worse.)

I was brought up in an alarmist atmosphere by my grandparents, then by the Axis Powers, and now by a sea of frightening statistics; but especially the scriptures kept me thinking. 71

"What has made this country great" and "what has made it rich" are two different things.
73

Austerity, plain living and high thinking, of old New England, the devout wisdom of the Founding Fathers, and the studious and courtly ways of a handful of Southern gentlemen showed us the way to be great. 73

I take small comfort in the conviction that before long circumstances are going to settle the problem for us. 74
